Promoting well-being and worksite productivity

An employee assistance program (EAP) can help increase productivity by assisting employees in their attempts to balance work and personal life. Employers can demonstrate their commitment to maintaining healthy and productive workforces by including EAP services as part of their employee benefits packages.

Standard Insurance Company offers the HorizonCareLink™ EAP and WorkLife services¹ to employers with group Long Term Disability coverage with The Standard. Provided at an additional cost for groups with 2,500 or more employees, these services help employers make the most of their human resource assets while providing employees and their families with confidential help and guidance to make the most of their lives.

Advantages to HorizonCareLink EAP and WorkLife Services

- Provide a broad range of services to meet the unique needs of employers and their employees
- Offer immediate access to assistance 24 hours a day via the Internet and a toll-free phone number
- Enhance productivity by assisting employees with resolution to problems that take them away from work
- Provide optional management training and assistance for employers

An EAP is a cost-effective way to enhance an employee benefits package.
